Children traumatized by sexual abuse and violence are so very vulnerable. At DCAC, our goal is for the healing to begin from the moment the child is connected with rescuers.

In DCAC's new building, forensic interviewers, police officers, district attorneys and victim advocates work as a team to investigate these terrible crimes.

The two-building campus allows us to provide all of the services needed for traumatized victims in one child-friendly location with emergency services available around the clock for families in crisis.

The expansion also provides much-needed space for DCAC's growing training and prevention programs.
